

We're Making Things Happen

When you deposit money in the Old Fort Bank, we reinvest that money right back into the community. That means economic growth...that means jobs.

Creating jobs is an important part of what we do. We finance businesses of all kinds. Lending money to help them prosper and grow. We also help projects get off the ground. And that means more jobs for the future.

Another important part of what we do is getting involved in economic development here in town. We work with other organizations in encouraging businesses to locate here. Our associates are also doing their part in making our community an even better place to live by volunteering their time and talents to deserving groups and organizations.

You may know us as that "bank down the street" but we are much, much more. All of us here are working to make things happen. For our community, and for you.
